THE CAMPAIGN

From special enquiries in all parts of the district, the Western Globe reaches the conclusion that Dr. Clark will be defeated. The polls that were against him last election are still in the same shape, and many of his strongest polls will not give very good returns. Blackfalds, Bentley, Rimbey, Alix, Erskine, Stettler, Castor, Gadaby, Red Deer and Innisfail will break even, and while Mr. Clark may receive a majority around Olds and Stettler, the country east of Stettler is strong against him.

This feeling of antagonism Mr. Clark engendered. The people feel that the gratuitous insults heaped on the northern part of the constituency were not deserved, and are determined to show their displeasure at the polls on the 21st.

JUST A WORD

We have heard it remarked that The Western Globe has "flopped" in this election contest. The Western Globe has not "flopped." The Western Globe has always, and will continue to support all that is good in Liberalism. In the interests of Liberalism we are opposing M. Clark. All good Liberals believe in fair representation in parliament, and this the Red Deer constituency has not received at the hands of M. Clark. It is in the best interests of Liberalism that M. Clark be defeated, and it would be better for the country at large if every constituency would take the stand the Red Deer constituency is taking, and impress on the mind of the member-elect that he is sent to Ottawa as the servant of the people, and that the people expect him to act as such in their interests. The time is past when any man should ask the intelligent electorate to give him their votes for the one purpose of furthering his own ends.

SOUNDING BRASS

The lost is found, the straying sheep has returned blatting to the fold; Michael Clark, ex-M.P. for Red Deer is amongst us, pleading vigorously that we send him back again to the joyous delights of Ottawa. It is a long time since we have seen Michael, it must be—let us see—three years anyway. The last time we saw him was when he wanted our votes and got them; that was some years ago. Then he vanished from our ken and returned only to glean votes over again.

There must be good metal in Michael, good, solid brass, of the tinkling and sounding cymbal kind. There is nothing Michael likes better than making a loud, clear, clamorous noise, he figures that it beats working all hollow. But never theless Michael really has brass to come back and face us, and ask us to vote for him, an utter stranger three years ago. He must be solid brass from his classic nose to the big corn on his little toe, the only part of him not being brass, being a husky pair of leather lungs and a centre-hung tongue. As a talker Michael Clark is all there, he does not even have to think in order to let the words flow smoothly. But as a representative of the northern part of this constituency he has proven a bitter disappointment, a flat failure. We took Dr. Clark on spec. in 1908, we tried him for three years, we forgot what he looked like, for Doctor Michael had gone and neglected us, because he figured he would never need us again. The minds of even the loudest of talkers sometimes lead them astray, and Michael's mind deceived him.

Said Michael to himself: "By the holy Duncan, I see no need to cater to them moss-backed haubens in the north part of my constituency. There will be a redistribution and they will no longer be in Olds, so I can just let them slip by."

So he cheerfully proceeded to grossly, almost criminally neglect the north, and to throw small pap-fleets of words to the other parts. His fulgent presence was never, or practically never—seen amongst us excepting when once or twice we caught a glance of his whiskers as he was snapped through the towns as a humble appendage to the attendants on Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Dr. Michael Clark M.P., flashed through like a golden meteor, too fast even to allow us to catch his smile. Now he is with us again, heart and soul, willing to devote his entire future to making us wealthy and happy—if we will vote for him. But we must remember that before another election comes there will surely and positively be another redistribution, and Dr. Clark will not be representing us. Will he then devote any particular care to us, any more than in the past? Not on your promissory note! Shall we vote for Dr. Clark to represent us at Ottawa? Shall we? Not until egotism and neglect have a different market value.

ALL ARE DISSATISFIED

The average citizen of Lacombe is of the opinion that the feeling of antagonism to M. Clark is more or less confined to this immediate vicinity. No thing could be further from the true state of affairs.

From one end of the district to the other the same feeling prevails, and is daily getting stronger. The people are awaking to the fact that we have had no representation for the past three years, and apparently it is determined that the same state of affairs will not be tolerated again. The great loss to the district through not having a representative who represents is just beginning to be realized.

After Dr. Clark's open boast that he would not require the votes from the northern part of the constituency again, and that it was good politics for him to slight this part of the constituency, the electors in the south have no confidence in him. They know that if the occasion should arise where he could further his own ends at their expense, he would give them the go-by without the slightest compunction.

They also know that Clark is of use to the government only for one thing—his great oratorical ability, which is of great assistance in filling in waits in the House of Commons. As for his speech on free trade and the tariff, the electors know that they can be purchased in book form—books published any way up to a hundred years ago. Some of them think that if Clark's free trade speech is of great value, it would pay this constituency to have a phonograph record made and sent to Ottawa, where it would represent us equally as well as M. Clark. And then his large ranching interests would not have to be neglected, and the dear calves and steers would not suffer the pangs of sorrow caused by his absence, and we could get a real representative. M. Clark is an unsafe man to elect in any constituency. He is not a practical man, and is not able to discern the needs of a constituency of such great importance as Red Deer.

In their own best interests the electors should leave Michael Clark at home.

40 PEOPLE KILLED

Manchester, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Plunging down a forty foot drop from a trestle and striking the west embankment of the river, two coaches of the Lehigh Valley passenger train were utterly demolished and more than a hundred people killed and injured. Six other heavily loaded coaches followed the first two, breaking the guard from the trestle work and dropping to the bottom of the river bed. Estimates of the dead place the number at over forty and injured at 83.

The train which came from Rochester crowded with army veterans and excursionists was forty minutes late when it reached Rochester junction. From there it sped eastward to make up time before reaching Geneva. The cause of the wreck was a flaw in a rail in the centre of the bridge across the Lehigh river. The heavy mogul engine had crossed but it is believed that in the passing it broke the rail for the next car bumped the ties and each coach was derailed as it arrived at the point. The entire train of fourteen cars was dragged over the ties for a few feet when the couplings broke two coaches from the engine. The first two cars leaped the trestling plunging into the east bank of the river. Two day coaches which followed them rolled from the bridge to the river bed near the shore and a pullman car and a Grand Trunk coach leaped the ties, caromed from the steel pier in mid stream, alighting and upward in the river and the fifty passengers being thrown into a pit filled with a living mass of men and women and rapidly flooding with water from the stream. A diner turned crossways on the bridge, balanced for an instant on the edge, and took the awful plunge, striking the trestle work and turning completely over the rear end, hitting the first pullman like a projectile and smashing both cars to splinters. Bodies and portions of bodies were scattered over the ground at the foot of the trestle and floated in the shallow stream.

Four cars escaped the horrible mess. A pullman standing crosswise on the bridge when the projecting twenty feet over the edge and trembling to fall on the mass of people and broken wood beneath, and three others telescoped behind it.

Passenger and Stricken Indescribable pandemonium followed. The pullman car "Emelyn," which remained on the bridge with one end projecting over the gulch and several cars behind it, derailed and in immediate danger of going over on the mass of wreckage below, were soon emptied of all their passengers, who with gangs of railroad employees from the big freight yards at Manchester rushed to the aid of the imprisoned victims of the disaster. It was several minutes before anybody reached the cars at the bottom. The cars did not catch fire. A few bodies were found and hurriedly after body was removed and carried by the rescuers, knee-deep in the river, to the bank on the west side of the trestle. There the dead and injured were laid on the ground while planks and lumber were requisitioned and a field hospital established. It was more than an hour before any of the injured could be removed. Special trains from Geneva and Rochester brought 600 nurses and medical aid.

Hundreds awaited treatment and the railroad station at Manchester, a cider mill and an ice house was used as temporary shelter for the sufferers. It was necessary to chop through the sides and bottoms of the day coaches, and the work of removing the victims moved with painful slowness. New York, Aug. 26.—In an official statement issued last night, representatives of the Lehigh Valley railroad here said: "The wreck of the Lehigh Valley train at Manchester today was caused by a broken rail. The rail was of an unusually high class for which a premium was paid. The defect consisted of an air hole in the centre of the web of the rail, extending about fourteen inches. The defect was such that it could not be detected by inspection."

The accident occurred just outside the Manchester yards and trains do not run through there at a greater speed than 25 miles an hour, although this train left Buffalo at 10:25, 40 minutes late, it did not make up any time between there and Rochester Junction, and a record of time at which it passed several stations showed that the speed limit of 25 miles an hour was not exceeded."

ELLICE CONCERT

A very successful concert was held in the Ellice school house, twelve miles north of town on Friday night. The object of the concert was to raise funds toward the salary of the teacher in charge of the Mission field there, Mr. Walkinshaw, of whom the people of the district have golden opinions because of his work and worth. A splendid success was achieved by the ladies, ice cream was sold and an excellent program rendered. The items contributed by the school children reflected great credit not only on the little folk themselves, but also on their teacher, Miss Mills, for the very excellent manner in which she had them trained. The program was varied and interesting from start to finish. There were violin selections, dialogues, solos, recitations, and other performances for which there is no name in English at work. A barber shop appeared on the platform which received the patronage of those well known gentlemen, but the barber, over anxious to keep any of them from going out, commenced operations on all three of them at the same time to their mutual disgust, and his own discomfiture. The curtains were drawn on the same uproarious applause. The talent was purely local and was an honor to the Ellice district.

We would like to mention names, but the large number of items rendered made it impossible to do so. The talented and good natured soloists every one did justice to their part, and from end to end the word describing the evening was "success." At an early hour the proceedings terminated by the doxology and the benediction by Mr. Walkinshaw.

TEES TOPICS

The Tees church has had its inside appearance greatly enhanced by a new square of carpet on the platform and a piece of matting for the aisle. The work was done by a committee of men and women and rapidly flooding with water from the stream. A diner turned crossways on the bridge, balanced for an instant on the edge, and took the awful plunge, striking the trestle work and turning completely over the rear end, hitting the first pullman like a projectile and smashing both cars to splinters. Bodies and portions of bodies were scattered over the ground at the foot of the trestle and floated in the shallow stream.

A number of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cramer's numerous friends paid a visit on a recent evening to the newly married couple and offered their congratulations and good wishes. Those present were: Messrs. Earl and Roy Joslin, Ed. Bean, Vincent Dully, Mr. Ash, Miss Fisher, Miss Robinson and Miss Hoffman. These succeeded in making a very jolly time, and the evening passed away all too soon. Refreshments were served, games were played, and at a late hour the visitors went to the Cramers' home, where, in due time, they will be ready for sale.

Mr. McPherson, of the Stickney Engine Co., is in Tees at present and undertaking his headquarters at the Myrtle Hotel. Public worship in Sargent School House on Sunday, Sept. 3rd. All Pleasant Valley people are invited.

McGILLIVRAY AT STETTLER

A. A. McGillivray, the Conservative candidate, assisted by T. M. Tweedie, of Calgary held a well attended meeting in Stettler on Tuesday evening, G. M. Bell was in the chair. The candidate spoke in part as follows:

It is the policy of standing alone on our own resources and not throwing our farmers into competition with the people who export more of everything than we produce which has made possible the high and confident national spirit which we have in Canada today.

In 1896, when after the death of Sir John A. Macdonald, the Liberals came into power, there was no mention of reciprocity, nor has there been at any election since. You will observe that free trade with the United States has not been an issue in Canada since 1891. In 1908, when the Liberal party asked the electors for their votes, there was no mention of reciprocity. Reciprocity has been dead since 1891.

The Conservative party stands against reciprocity with the United States, but it stands for representation by the people. It is for this reason that our present leader, R. L. Borden, and the Conservative party in Canada have fought tooth and nail that the people of this country should have some opportunity of telling the government of Canada what their wishes are on this all important subject.

My friend, Dr. Clark speaks of majority rule. He says that because there are a few more Liberals than Conservatives in the House of Commons this reciprocity agreement should be thrust down the throats of the people. For every Liberal in the House of Commons at Ottawa there are thousands of people in Canada. If the majority should rule then the people of Canada would be in the majority, and not Mr. Borden and Mr. Patterson, should determine with regard to the United States.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1898 used these words, "Canada today is not in favor of reciprocity. There was a time when Canadians, beginning with myself, would have given many things to obtain the American market, but, thank Heaven, those days are past and over."

It has been urged that this being concurrent legislation it should be tried for a year, and if not satisfactory we could withdraw from our position by a stroke of the pen. But be not deceived. Concurrent legislation is practically on the same basis as a treaty which is usually signed for a period of years and which may always be abrogated, subject only to the almost inevitable result of national ill will or of international strife, and we could alter concurrent legislation once we entered into it only with weak retaliation on our part, which would be a mark of insincerity and unfriendliness to the people to the south of us. Then you must remember that nations have vested interests, and as individuals and corporations and that they are usually somewhat binding upon the weaker party. When you have American railroads and other industries keeping their identity as American institutions established in this country, and when the American trusts have swallowed up our natural resources they will not be in a hurry to abrogate a treaty which may not be so very easy to undo as you would like to see. To use the words of Van Horne: "We are making a bed to lie in and die in."

Dr. Clark has told us that property has come with the advent of the Liberal government, and for that reason he asks you to support reciprocity, and yet you are aware that since 1896, when the Liberal government came into power, they have used and swallowed in toto the tariff of the Conservative party, and that progress of which he speaks with such pride is a result of the Conservative tariff in this country and it is that tariff which he asks you to set aside and take a chance on the property which has been yours.

The prosperity of the country has been due to our fertile land and the sunshine which the good Lord has bestowed upon us.

The chief argument in favor of the agreement is that we will have a wider market with a country which produces a surplus of nearly every commodity that we in Canada have to export, and which competes in the sale of their goods with Canada in every market of the world. Great Britain is today our biggest customer, and it is an indisputable fact that the United States is our second biggest customer, and it is an indisputable fact that the United States is our second biggest customer, and it is an indisputable fact that the United States is our second biggest customer.

States is Canada's strongest competitor both at home and abroad. Not only have you not had an opportunity of going thoroughly into the question, but that this government who asks you to pass upon the most important issue which is before the people. The United States, on the other hand, had a senate report made with great care and exactness, laid before them covering the whole of the subject matter of reciprocity before they dealt with it. It is to this report made by the people with whom we are dealing that we must refer. The information which they lay before you.

Now we are told that the wheat south of the boundary line between the Great Lakes and the Rocky Mountains is higher in the United States than in Canada, but it is a significant fact that so soon as this agreement was mooted the price at Winnipeg was higher than at Minneapolis. The price of wheat at Minneapolis is higher than that at Winnipeg under present conditions is a very simple matter to explain. There is a demand for certain grades of wheat by the millers of Minneapolis, and in order to get hard wheat, which makes necessary for the farmers at Minneapolis to bonus that wheat in order to keep it from being exported out of the country. You will find that wheat which is shipped from the United States, but that the whole product is used for mixing with softer wheat in order to turn out the standard grade of flour which they do from year to year, and this is the reason why, that on a certain class of hard wheat the relative price is higher at Minneapolis than at Liverpool. So soon as 50,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat would be thrown on the Minneapolis market there would be no reason in the world why the Minneapolis millers should bonus the American hard wheat to keep it in the country, or why they should pay the original price for the Canadian hard wheat. We know that as soon as there would be a surplus to export, the purchase price by the millers would go down, and the export price would be necessary to be governed by the Liverpool market, the clearing house of the world. Once the wheat production of the two countries is pooled, the price of wheat for export will be over 200,000,000 bushels. It is not absurd to suppose that the price at Minneapolis will maintain the advantage over Liverpool which it enjoys today. What you are doing is bringing about something that will make happy the Minneapolis miller, but will not put one cent in the pockets of the farmer.

It is argued that although the United States today produces more wheat than they consume, it does not necessarily follow that the time will come when the United States will not produce a sufficient food supply for its own population. And what is the answer to this? We look for information, and we go back to the senate report, and it disproves any possibility of this view being the correct one. It has proved to the satisfaction of the United States senate that the agricultural area of the United States is sufficient to produce a food supply for at least 400,000,000 and possibly 500,000,000 people. Liverpool is the clearing house of the world for wheat. The price at the centre of trade is governed by supply and demand. If the United States country by reason of a crop failure was short, say 2,000,000 bushels of wheat, this would effect the world's supply and naturally raise the price at the world's centre of trade. But would this increase the price to the Canadian farmer? The United States would be free to buy in any market in the world. Consequently the removal of the tariff of the United States is a slight degree affect the price of Canadian wheat. Last year the United States exported about 114,000,000 bushels of wheat. Now they get a high price for that wheat, according to the Liverpool market, Canada gets the same price for her wheat. It is not absurd then to say that it is desirable that we should go to the further transportation of wheat from the United States and having the United States people ship it through their ports to the same destination at the same market price.

You must consider that we pay a further price. We pay the price of admission to the markets of the farmers of Great Britain is today our biggest customer, and it is an indisputable fact that the United States is our second biggest customer, and it is an indisputable fact that the United States is our second biggest customer.

Japan, Norway, Russia, Spain, Switzerland, and Venezuela. Many of these countries are today large exporters of animal and agricultural products which are produced in this country. Under this agreement they are entitled to the same right of entry to our market as is given to the farmers of the United States. This right they get under treaties which contain what is known as a favored nation clause on which the United States markets are not open to them. We compete with the world, including ourselves, while they compete with us and give us nothing in return. In addition to this it must be remembered that our markets are open to the producers throughout the British Empire. That these favored nations will enter into actual competition with us is not hard to believe when we find that nine of them have a combined production of 1,200,000,000 bushels of wheat.

Another matter in connection with the economic side of this agreement is that the western farmers went down to Ottawa, and asked for free agricultural implements. They were, as usual, complimented and talked to by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, but did they, I ask you, gentlemen, give you their implements? No, in place of free agricultural implements we are offered, free corn, oats, barley, feed and so forth. Under this proposed agreement the tariff on binders, reapers and mowers is only reduced from 17 1/2 per cent to 15 per cent, in short, a few cents on each agricultural implement which you are asked to give. The west will still pay the farmer needs, but will have no protection in the market in which it sells. Now, then, let us see who is the friend of the farmer. What you want is duty on binders, reapers and mowers, and you want to have the price in the markets of the world for the products that you have to sell as you can from the United States.

Notes of the Farm

Not Written for Farmers

The death rate of the average indicator ought to be looked into by the body of health. Something is radically wrong when a man hatches out 180 chickens and rears only 40 of them. It is not much coddling. A Spartan course of treatment, consisting of cold baths, a dry massage with a rough towel and a breakfast of prime ribs of beef, will enable a gentle and a faced pullet to lay the champion of the henery in four rounds. This treatment is severe, but it will rub a young rooster with muscles like a blacksmith and the chesty demeanor of a man who has just tugged the slot machine for a straight flush.

All attempts to improve upon the old-fashioned Early Rose potato, which was as many as a fat gain in a Turkish bath, have failed ignominiously. The Early Rose will start from the tape on a hardwood floor, and multiply faster than a rainbow trout. It is harder to keep down than a pint cup of cod liver oil, and its pores are as tight as the old deacon who never let go of a dime without singing "God Be With You Till We Meet Again." In attempting to refine the Early Rose, seed specialists have turned out a wide-headed potato whose eyes water like a pious elder at the dance of the Seven Veils, and which is about as gratifying to the taste as a sour cream puff. You have to give it to the Early Rose.

Some people are so afraid of the theatre that they won't let their children attend a performance of the "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" for fear they will become stage struck. This is a good thing. As it is the stage is loaded up with remnants from the farm, the factory and the fire-side until promotions are fewer and farther between than in the United States army. It is harder to rid a boy of the notion of a cavalry spec and wear a tin helmet for his railroad fare and two bits a day than it would be to dam the Yukon river with a hair pin. It is a toss-up which is the greater menace to each other the stage to the farm, or the farm to the stage.

The White Leghorn pullet sells mainly on her beauty and the graceful lines on her figure, and if she is not kept well groomed she will prove as big a drag on the market as hot air in the senate. The White Leghorn with a set of night blooming flowers is as unsaleable as a mind frozen on the Plymouth Rock, for she comes into the world looking like a bargain sale of bed-room wall paper.

but you might as well try to sell hangers in the Zulu islands as to dispose of a White Leghorn whose face looks like it had been run through a coffee grinder. Run the bird around the block until the frodoes come to the surface to breathe, after which they can be easily removed with a garden trowel.

A poultry journal says that in cold weather the average hen should not be required to cover more than eleven eggs at one setting. That depends upon the size and elasticity of the hen. We had a hen once that was so bowlegged you could throw a soapstone through her underpinning without ruffling a tail feather, and when the bent over to pick up a grub, she resembled a sine eating the Horseshoe Falls. That hen has been known to recline in a sitting posture on twenty-one candle eggs without running a hoof through a single shell, but she was an exception. Nevertheless, if we had a herd of pullets which couldn't build up the circulation of more than eleven eggs at one time we would start a holocaust in the henery.

The man who is too stingy to give a dollar to the struggling church his wife and children attend is usually the one who works his horses all day Sunday. Some men are as tight as the freight conductor who would not carry his mother. Economy is a good thing, but when a man follows it up until he looks like the hide on a shell-bark hickory, he will find himself about as popular as green onions at a pink tea.

5th U. E. Reeves,.....85
6th W. M. Puffer,.....84
7th R. M. Gibson,.....84
8th John Lockerby,.....83
The judge in this competition was F. S. Jacobs. He remarked that the crops were heavier in this district than in any district he had visited this season, and that our fields were comparatively free from weeds. He had come across no wild oats in the district. He was of the opinion that winter wheat should be sowed earlier than it is here, as it would make a better growth.

He thought that the oats should be cut fairly green this year, as there was plenty of moisture in the ground and lots of sap in the straw.

CORONATION ON

THE MARKET

Coronation is the first division point west of Lacombe and is splendidly situated about twenty miles east of Castor, in the centre of some of the finest farming districts of Western Canada. Its natural advantages, combined with important railway developments, assure it a future of considerable importance. Engineers are now beating two branch lines north and north westerly from Coronation and a third line is projected south westerly to connect with the branch running north westerly from Swift Current. The lots will be offered for sale by auction at low prices on the townsite on Wednesday, 27 September 1911. A single fare rate for the round trip from all points between Winnipeg and Calgary to Castor will be allowed to intending purchasers and a special train will run from Castor to Coronation the night before the sale. Sleeping accommodation will be provided free and meals served at cost. This is a splendid opportunity to see at little expense some of the most interesting phases of western development.

The construction department reports that the steel will reach Coronation from Castor about September 15th, so that an early train service from the west is assured.

Coronation Will Be A divisional centre on the great new railway route from St. Paul to Edmonton.

An important junction centre, as three branch lines are already projected.

A distributing centre for a large and wealthy district. A purchasing centre for thousands of Western Canada's most prosperous farmers. If you wish to go into business or make a safe and profitable investment you cannot do better than purchase lots at Coronation, which is bound to rapidly become one of the most important towns of the West.

If possible, attend this sale personally or instruct your representative to act for you, as it is certain that after the sale the values of all lots will materially increase.

MURDER AT CASTOR

Castor, Alberta, Aug. 23.—Word reached town Monday afternoon of a murder in the Hamilton Lake district, thirty miles south of Castor. A home stender by the name of Norman Merritt was brutally murdered by a neighbor, one Fred Carlson who had slept with him the night before.

Nearly neighbors found Merritt dead in his bed with a fracture of the skull, and wounds on the face and neck, which had been administered with an axe.

Coroner Lyon and Constable Coventry were called and left for the scene at once. Suspicion pointed to Carlson, and he was taken in charge by Constable Coventry of the R. N. W. M. P.

Carlson later made a full confession of the crime to these officers but gave no motive for the crime.

EDWARD J. QUINN, Manager

Some grain is being harvested in spite of the bad weather, cutting between the showers. A lot of hay is in the stacks.

The political situation is the chief topic these days, with reciprocity as the feature prominent.

Mr. C. W. Miles has received the appointment of returning officer at the Bentley polling place and J. P. McPherson enunciation.

Mrs. Clara Brown of Rimby is helping Mr. J. P. McPherson at the Alexandra Hotel.
